our aims

Focused on research related to nucleosides, nucleotides, oligonucleotides and nucleic acids, the aims of the IS3NA are:

- To coordinate and sponsor meetings and to promote publications.
- To provide means for the dissemination of knowledge dealing with current research.
- To act as a mediator for communication, cooperation and understanding between scientists of all nationalities.
- To provide information about and to stimulate interest in the above-mentioned areas among persons of all nationalities.
- To encourage the study of the above-mentioned areas in institutions of higher education and to improve the quality of teaching of these topics.
- To encourage national and international collaborations on research and application among academic, industrial, governmental and private institutional organizations.

membership

What do we offer?

Reduced registration fees for conferences sponsored or co-sponsored by the Society

Our next International Round Table on the Chemistry and Applications of Nucleosides, Nucleotides and Nucleic Acids will be held in Minneapolis (MN, USA), September 12-16th, 2004.

Journals at reduced rates

At the outset, the journals Nucleosides, Nucleotides & Nucleic Acids and Nucleic Acids Research will be affiliated with the Society, and the reduced rates are available to members. Other journals are also likely to become affiliated with the Society.
